

NOMAD'S CHOIR

Spring 2017
Vol. 25 Issue 2

FREE
Poetry Journal

Nomad's Choir is published quarterly

Email submissions to jmofnc@aol.com

Editor:
Joshua Meander

own more,

z brain.

el río

el río the river flows
los hombres the men moving on the river water into light el agua tones high extravagant extravagante elogio praise radiant moving the barges along the canal the estuary the sea el mar de fondo la luna a cada muerte de un obispo pulling the tide gulls circling above circle of tones circle of light crown la corona luminosa dar a luz give birth death muerte we stand upon the shore

Bernard Block

A new freedom

A new freedom
Everybody wants to fly as a bird,
Nobody wants to remain in chains,
Because everyone has a new freedom to live merrily,
But some cruel take our freedom away
And make us their slave.

Freedom is a god gifted gift
Which nobody can destroy from this earth.
Freedom is not made for rich
But for innocent poor dwelling in slums.
Freedom means peace and love
Not fear around us.
Freedom is what brings a nice smile
On everybody's face.

Freedom knows no boundary
Of happiness and sprinkles its grace
On everyone wonderfully.
Freedom knocks at every door
And kisses everyone in the early morning
As a nightingale sings its lovely hymn for each person.
Freedom walks from door to door
To visit so that no one Can be deprived of it.

Pushkar Bisht.

(7)

Fourth Movement from Marble What

I don't need to die.
I already have all the sky and all the sea
to plug my breaths.
Or of white flecked green ivy.
Swallowing fragments of live fish,
I quench my throat's thirst with the budding resins of a wet and violet wind.

It is autumnal, Spring.
Spring smell with its bud barer than branches.

In circle, in arrows, not under the skin yet, in before the intention of the butterfly attracted and exhausted by its flutter.

God told me - or to whom did he -
You came from hyacinths, but tulips will see you.

Erika Dagnino,

ENDLESS LOVE

In a flash

awareness

brought about enormous pain

when he realised that in her

he recognised reflection of himself.

Sabahudin HADZIALIC